NEGRO ROAD CONVICT SUSPECTED OF CRIME

Murder of Miss Lura Parsons Occurred Near Prison Camp In Harlan County

(By Associated Press)

Harlan, Ky., Sept. 11—Hair clutched in the hand of Miss Lura Parsons, teacher of the Pine Mountain Settlement School, slain on the mountain trail Tuesday, may furnish a clue to the murderer. It is not determined whether the hair is of a white man or a negro, but it is believed it was pulled from the body of her assailant. Circuit Judge Davis today instructed the grand jury to carefully investigate the tragedy.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 11—Dr. H. C. Winnes, 50, state Field Veterinarian, detained here in connection with the circumstances surrounding the death of Miss Lura Parsons, left here today with Deputy Sheriff Nolan for Harlan. Nolan said the general opinion in Harlan was a negro slew the girl. Winnes said he saw Miss Parsons on her journey from Dillon, where she left the train to go to her school. He says he advised her against making the journey. He left her a quarter of a mile from Dillon. She was walking the direction of the negro convict camp.

Frankfort, Sept. 11—Information received here today by Warden Wm. R. Moyer, of the Frankfort Reformatory, is to the effect that a convict is believed to be guilty of the murder of Miss L. R. Parsons, of Lancaster, a teacher at the Pine Mountain Settlement School. While on his way to the convict camp on Pine Mountain, where 75 prisoners are being used in the construction of a road, Parole Agent L. S. Heyer met a guard bringing several men back to the penitentiary. Heyer sent Warden Moyer a note by the guard saying that he believed one of the convicts had assaulted and murdered Miss Parsons.

Details of Fearful Crime

Harlan, Ky., Sept. 11—Attack on a lonely pass on Pine Mountain, Miss Lura Parsons, 25, assistant domestic science teacher at the Pine Mountain Settlement School, was criminally assaulted, brutally slain and her body thrown over a ledge Tuesday afternoon.

Discovery of the crime Thursday night created excitement in this vicinity.

The scene of the murder is but a few hundred yards from a camp in this county where seventy negro convicts, working on the road are quartered.

Sheriff H. H. Howard today began interrogation of the convicts, Captain Marcum, in charge of the camp, said that all the convicts were accounted for at the time the crime was committed.

Harlan county officers were anxious to get in communication with H. C. Winnes, connected with the government experiment station at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, believing that he may be able to shed some light on the tragedy. He was the last person thus far to have seen Miss Parsons alive after she alighted from an L. & N. train at Dillon at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and started afoot across Pine Mountain to the school, a distance of six miles.

The victim, who had been connected with the faculty of the institution since June, had been away since August 1, going to the home of her father, Ed Parsons, a farmer between Lancaster and Richmond, to assist the family in moving to Berea. Her father had moved to Berea this week in order to better educate his children.

Mr. Winnes arrived at the school at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He said that a woman connected with the school had alighted from the train at Dillon and started walking across the mountain. He had ridden a mule and last saw her about a quarter of a mile from Dillon, he told the school officials.

No word had been received at the school from Miss Parsons that she was returning and it was at first believed that the woman crossing the mountain was another teacher who was expected later. When the woman failed to appear at the school Tuesday saw them as they sped away.

night it was believed that Mr. Winnes was mistaken as to the destination of the woman passenger who alighted from the train at Dillon.

Mr. Winnes, who had come to the school to test cows for tuberculosis, returned to Lexington Thursday morning.

Thursday the school authorities became worried and fearing the woman had become lost in the mountains, instituted a search. Fifty men were organized as a searching party. It was agreed that if the woman was found two shots would be fired to summon others.

Will Browning, one of the searchers, working alone through the underbrush, found the mutilated body at 6 o'clock Thursday evening. He gave the signal, drawing other searchers to him. County authorities were notified of the circumstances and began an investigation.

The body was found under a 30-foot ledge over which it had been thrown. A blood stained fence rail, with which the victim was beaten, was lying at her side. Her throat was cut. Evidence was found indicating she was first assaulted. Her purse was missing.

That she had fought desperately for her life was shown by the appearance of the ground over which she had struggled with her slayer. Her arms and body were bruised by the blows of the fence rail.

The body was brought to Harlan and prepared for burial at the undertaking parlors of Harlan Hardware Company.

Besides her father, Miss Parsons is survived by her stepmother and several half-sisters and half-brothers.

Discovery of the prints of the broken shoe of a mule, corresponding to that on a mule Winnes rode into the mountains, off the road and within a few yards of where the struggles between the woman and her slayer took place, resulted in the warrant being issued for the veterinarian.

The warrant charging Winnes with murder was sworn to by Miss Elizabeth Bollinger, teacher at the school. Finding of the mule print by the side of the road and the length of time required by Winnes to make the trip to the school from Dillon—double the usual time—are the bases for the warrant. Winnes returned to Frankfort Thursday.

Suspicious has also been directed to the group of convicts in road construction, whose camp was not far from the scene of the crime.

Discovery of black hair clutched in the woman's hand caused a grilling of Sam Ellory, negro convict, who has a black mustache. Ellory, a Louisville negro, serving 15 years for attempted assault, drove the dinner wagon on the main mountain road, which crosses the path Miss Parsons took, and was in the vicinity of the scene of the crime at the time it is believed to have been committed. No warrant has been issued for the guard.

While speaking of Richmond, Madame Nye told the business men they ought to clean up the outside of their business buildings. She declared that Richmond was going to be a mighty pretty little city with its paved streets and White Way and the business men should take more pride in the outside appearance of their buildings as well as the inside. She paid the Daily Register a nice compliment as a "live wire" newspaper, but very intelligently observed that a live newspaper can't do everything to make a town up.

The fortune teller declared that one of Richmond's chief needs is a new hotel with modern equipment, an elevator and other conveniences. She also criticized profiteering in town. She said that you could get some eggs, ham and coffee at one restaurant for 35 cents, while another charged 70 cents, and wanted to know if that wasn't profiteering. She got a big "hand" when she said that the price that the people have to pay for gas is "out of all reason."

Madame Nye's attractive young daughter sang a couple of songs in charming Japanese costume before her act and was brought back with repeated applause. She has a sweet voice, and is graceful and dainty.

Big crowds have packed the opera house every night and have been pleased and mystified at the Nyes' act.

PREDICTIONS COX WILL CARRY OHIO

Dr. E. C. McDougle and Louis B. Weisenburgh Bring Good News From Buckeye State

(By Associated Press)

The question of who is going to carry Ohio in the presidential race is one of the most absorbing that politicians are studying today. With both presidential candidates favorite sons of Ohio a real battle is certain for the electoral vote of the Buckeye state. Harding is now United States Senator from Ohio and was elected Lieutenant Governor once. Cox has been elected governor three times.

Dr. E. C. McDougle, dean of Eastern Normal School, is just back from a visit to his old home in Meigs county, Ohio. He says that though the county is normally republican by a large majority, his brother-in-law there told him that a large number of republicans were going to vote for Cox. He pointed them out to Dr. McDougle, and made the prediction that if the same ratio governs over the rest of the state, that Cox will carry the state easily. Dr. McDougle is a democrat and was, of course, pleased to hear such news at his old home.

An Independent's View

Really more emphatic, however, is the opinion of Louis B. Weisenburgh, whose home is in Richmond, but who has large manufacturing interests in Middletown and other points in Ohio.

Mr. Weisenburgh is an independent in politics. Before the national conventions he favored General Wood for the presidency and was outspoken in his behalf. Now, however, he is for Cox and he thinks Cox will carry Ohio and be elected. He says that Cox has made Ohio the best governor she ever had in her history; that he has the confidence of both the capitalist and the laboring element, and he knows scores of big republicans who are going to vote for Cox who usually vote the straight republican ticket.

Smith explained why he had written so many prescriptions despite the fact that he lived in a sparsely-settled neighborhood by this statement: "I was porter at Million's drug store when it was located at Twelfth and Broadway. That's where I wrote the bulk of the prescriptions."

DRUG STORE PORTER WROTE PRESCRIPTIONS

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 11—In the hearings of physicians summoned before Prohibition Attorney Standard for examination today as to why their permits for prescribing whisky should not be revoked. Mr. Stanfield told the physicians who had cited the United States Dispensary as authority for use of whisky in diseases that, when the next volume is issued, whisky will not be listed as medicine. This follows the action of the navy in banishing whisky from ships.

A negro physician did a flourishing prescription business while acting as a porter in a drug store, according to testimony offered. In this dual capacity, the negro, evidently met many persons "suffering" and complied with their requests for the "cureall"—whisky.

This was brought out by Lucien S. Smith, negro doctor, who was charged by Federal Inspector Mayer with writing hundreds of prescriptions, both regular and emergency.

Smith explained why he had written so many prescriptions despite the fact that he lived in a sparsely-settled neighborhood by this statement: "I was porter at Million's drug store when it was located at Twelfth and Broadway. That's where I wrote the bulk of the prescriptions."

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 11—First hand information regarding the tobacco situation abroad has been brought to Louisville by G. O. Tuck, a tobacco handler of this city, after an extensive trip through western Europe.

Tobacco export is checked, he said, by the general turmoil abroad, unfavorable foreign exchange rate, shipping conditions, unrest of labor in Europe and the resumption of European tobacco production.

In view of these condition, he asserted it is "rather unfortunate" that Kentucky and other tobacco growing states have planted large crops, as indicated by government reports.

"Every tobacco manufacturer in Europe," Mr. Tuck said, "has plenty of tobacco on hand and many of them want to sell to other countries."

SOCIALISTS REVOLT IN TRIESTE

(By Associated Press)

Triest, Italy, Sept. 11.—A Socialist revolt in which barricades were erected in streets, artillery, rifles, machine guns and bombs freely used in the struggle between the rioters and the military broke out here last evening.

Troops and naval forces restored order. Several soldiers were wounded. There were numerous casualties among the Socialists.

Col. Dunn Sells Another

At Danville, Col. Ike Dunn sold for W. H. Thurmond his fine farm located one mile from the city limits of Danville, on the Shakerown pike. The farm was sold in two parts. The tracts of 123 acres was sold to A. S. Broaddus, a well known Danville citizen, at $290 an acre. The tract of 27 acres was sold to Mr. Sewell at $29.50 per acre. Col. I. M. Dunn, the premier land auctioneer, was on the block.

LEXINGTON PIKE FIRST STATE PROJECT

New State Road Law To Be Put Into Effect First In Madison Boggs Tells Baxter

The Richmond to Lexington turnpike is to be the first project undertaken for reconstruction under the state aid working plan, is information that County Road Engineer J. G. Baxter has from State Road Commissioner Joe S. Boggs. This will be good news for the thousands who travel this pike, which is one of the worst to be found anywhere. And this applies both to the Madison and Fayette side of the river. The only really good piece of roadway on the entire 26 miles of the road is the asphalt road six miles this side of Lexington.

It is hardly expected, however, that state aid work can start before spring. In the meantime, Engineer Baxter has moved a crew to the Clay's Ferry end of the Madison portion of the pike. They have started work, filling up the holes and smoothing out the roadway as much as possible before bad weather sets in.

BASEBALL AVERAGES

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, Sept. 11—Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians, regained his batting eye during the past week, and tied George Sisler, the St. Louis star, for batting honors in the American League, according to averages released today and which include Wednesday's games. Sisler went into a slump and dropped to .391, the mark which Speaker has attained. Joe Jackson, of Chicago, stands in third place with an average of .384, while "Babe" Ruth of the New York Yankees is still king, in fourth place with .375.

Ruth cracked out his 48th home run during the past week and broke the home run record held by Perry Werden, of Minneapolis. He now is the greatest home run hitter of all time.

Other leading batters for sixty or more games: E. Collins, Chicago, .365; Meusel, New York, .346; Rice, Washington, .343; Judge, Washington, .342; Jacobson, St. Louis, .337; Hendry, Boston, .337.

Nicholson, of Pittsburgh, has dethroned Hornsby, of St. Louis, for batting honors in the National League. The slugging Pittsburgh outfielder is hitting .387 while the St. Louis star slumped to .355, with Easys, of Boston, pushing him with .351.

Other leading batters: Young, New York, .344; Roush, Cincinnati, .340; J. Smith, St. Louis, .328; Stock, St. Louis, .323; Z. Wheat, Brooklyn, .323; King, New York, .321; Hollocher, Chicago, .318.

Progressives Can't Stand For Harding

Men who favored Roosevelt in 1912 are said to be rejecting the candidacy of Senator Harding in large numbers. His undenied membership in the Old Guard which Roosevelt denounced so vigorously, his bitter denunciation of Roosevelt at that time and his well known reactionary tendencies all contribute to bring him into ill favor with the real Roosevelt followers. Many of them still contend they are republicans, but cannot stomach Harding. Such a one is Harold L. Ickles, one of the organizers of the Progressive party in Illinois, who was an Illinois delegate at large to the convention which nominated Harding for President and voted against making the nomination unanimous. He announced that he could not support Harding.

"Holding as I do that my duties and obligations as a citizen are paramount to my duties and obligations as a party man, I have concluded to support the Democratic national ticket in this campaign," said Mr. Ickles, in a signed statement. "I shall continue to be affiliated with the republican party, but I cannot in good conscience support for President a candidate who was not the real choice of his party and whom I regard as unworthy and unfit to be the Chief Executive of this nation by tests of ability, public policies, official record, and independence of character."

Mr. Ickles declared the primaries showed that the republican party did not want Harding as its candidate, and that his nomination was "a distinct shock to the progressive thought of the country."

"Senator Harding had an opportunity to repair the bad impression that his nomination created and his play-acting in the McKinley role kept alive by a clear-cut and ringing speech of acceptance that would have lined him up squarely as a forward-looking, progressively minded man," Mr. Ickles continued. "But once more he failed signally. His speech shows that he is not even satisfied to stand pat. He proclaims himself a reactionary. He would turn back the hands of the clock and satisfy his aspirations of men's souls by talking of a full stomach. No more uninspired and uninspiring utterance from a public man is of record in American political history."

"What Senator Harding believes in is not party government, but its control. He has the Mark Hanna conception of party. He looks upon the Republican Senate cabal as the Republican hosts and deceives himself that when Senators Smoot and Watson and Lodge, Murray, Crane, James Hemingway and Col. Harvey met privately in a room at the Blackstone Hotel at 2 o'clock in the morning to decide upon him as the candidate and to determine his policies, the Republican party was assembled together for solemn deliberation."

Gov. Cox's record is a distinctly progressive record," said Mr. Ickles. "That record proves that he looks upon public office as an opportunity for public service. He is standing in this campaign upon what he has achieved along progressive lines for the public welfare. His eyes are to the front fixed on the future. He is not wobbling. And he is running as James M. Cox; he is not masquerading as a second Grover Cleveland or a substitute Andrew Jackson."

fiduous foreign policy of the present administration, we shall, unless unexpected events transpire, regard it as our duty to support the republican candidate.

The "perfidious foreign policy" of the present administration has been to declare war upon and send to perdition the greatest dream of conquest and oppression that the world has ever seen. Are American citizens, who gave themselves, their sons, and their property freely to the country between April, 1917, and November, 1918, forgetful of their sacrifices? Are they willing that the hyphenated American, that half-breed who eats American bread and sucks American honey, should now undertake to control the election of Chief Executive of this nation? Must the battle for Americanism which raged in this country during the war, be fought again?

The Hyphen Again Rears Ugly Head
(From Courier-Journal)
The hyphen, that detestable phenomenon of American society, is again lifting its hydra-headed hideousness and discharging its venom that it may live and be a thwart dismavert torment once more.

The German-American National Conference, of which George Sylvester Viereck, that poisonous fang of German propagandism, is secretary, has adopted this resolution:

In view of certain enlightened statements of Senator Harding's speech of acceptance and in his subsequent utterances expressing his unalterable opposition to the League of Nations and the per-

If you really are a good waltzer you ought to be able to dance with a cup of tea on your head without spilling any, says Paymaster Commander A. M. Cree in his "Handbook on Ballroom Dancing." The Paymaster's voice is one of many raised in London against so-called floppy antics.

And he has a word of warning for the women—they should never hang their chins on their partners' shoulders, but keep their heads steady and not let go bobbing about in anxiety about a possible crash with other couples.

(Winchester Sun)

Unless the white women of Kentucky go to the polls and vote this fall the sentiment of the women of the state will be expressed by the 80,000 or more negro women in Kentucky, who can be depended upon to register and vote as directed by Republican leaders.

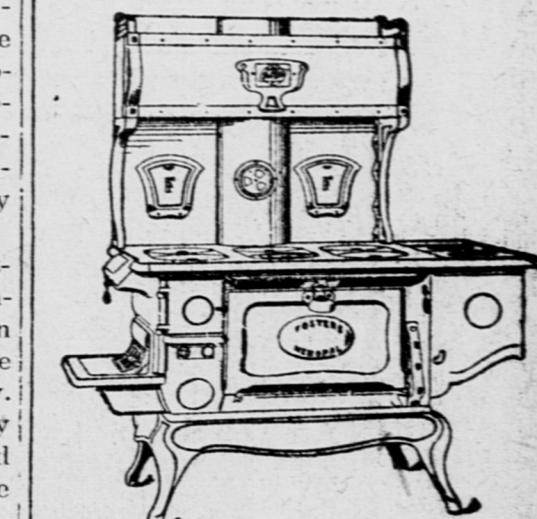

The Maysville Bulletin is responsible for the statement, quoted in the Cynthiana Democrat, that the Republicans are polling only the negro women in this state, and that they propose to permit white women to remain at home on election day if they so desire.

The Louisville Post observes rightly that in no other state in the union is it so important for the women of intelligence to register and vote as it will be this year in Kentucky. Our women who have given any thought to the responsibility placed upon them by the ratification of the equal suffrage amendment must realize that if they stay away from the polls and allow the negroes to control the election in this state, they, the white women, will be responsible for the ills which will follow.

Kentucky is regarded by both parties this year as a pivotal state. The 40,000 majority rolled up by the Republicans last year because Democratic voters stayed at home and neglected their duty has placed the former Democratic stronghold in doubtful position.

A. T. Hert, of Indiana, owner and proprietor of the Republican party in Kentucky and national committeeman from the state, has promised to deliver the state in the coming election.

With negro women joining negro men in the ranks of his party he can go far toward his goal unless white women take advantage of their opportunity to thwart him and express the true sentiment of the blue grass state.

HISTORY OF KENTUCKY DERBY IS ATTRACTIVE

The Daily Register has just received a most beautifully printed and delightfully written booklet from the Kentucky Jockey Club, in which is compiled a history of the famous turf classic, the Kentucky Derby. The book is embellished with photographs of leading turf officials and famous racers which the Blue Grass state produced. It is indeed a work of art in every way. Daniel E. O'Sullivan, of Louisville, who did the editorial work on the volume, prefaces the work with An Appreciation of the Kentucky Thoroughbred, which is a work of art itself. He writes:

He is of royal lineage. No plebeian strain pollutes the pure blood that courses through his veins. The fire of the desert suns is in his eyes; its warmth is in his heart; the speed of Arabian winds is in his feet. His courage is a heritage of the ages. It was struck at white heat from the anvil of daring and sacrifice, for in the tent of his master he learned love and loyalty and in tribal conflict he shared the dangers and glory of battle.

Cross the thoroughbred on a colder breed and he will fill the currents of its sluggish nature with ambition. The magic of his blood will brighten its dull eye, give pride to its bearing, arch its crest, lend lustre to its coat and give shape and swiftness to its limbs.

Kings and queens are not as royally bred. They often perpetuate the mental and physical defects of their degenerate forbears. But the thoroughbred is tried in the furnace of contest and if he fails he is cast aside. No quarter is shown; he must win his right to found a family. If he is beaten he is doomed to ignoble tasks. If he proves a coward, the paddock, the race course, and the stud will know him no more. Only the fittest and the fleetest survive.

The history of centuries is searched to find a flaw in the ancestry of the thoroughbred. What record did they inscribe on the parchment where the Kings and Queens of the turf are ennobled and enthroned? Did they weaken at any part of the journey? Could they go the route? Did they flinch from the steel? Did they welcome the whip? Did they struggle on when the very breath of their bodies failed? Did they fight it out in those last few, determined strides where victory beckons and allies, and where the stark spectre of defeat waits for its victims?

From the palm trees' shade and the hot sands of the desert, the thoroughbred was transplanted to Kentucky and found sanctuary in the Blue Grass. He saw fields as fertile as those that fair Ruth gleaned in alien lands. Its sweet verdure, a carpet woven out of the texture of blue skies, and the greening robe of nature's breast, awaited his coming. It embraced his weary feet, filled his nostrils with fragrance, fed him when he hungered, refreshed him with its dews, and when he grew weary took him to its undulating bosom. In this favored realm of sunshine and shadow he was cheered by its warmth, sheltered by its shade, and encompassed by its beauty.

The Blue Grass was fashioned by the Master as a playground for royalty and it is meet and proper that the Kings and Queens of the turf should possess the land.

No Matches In Portugal

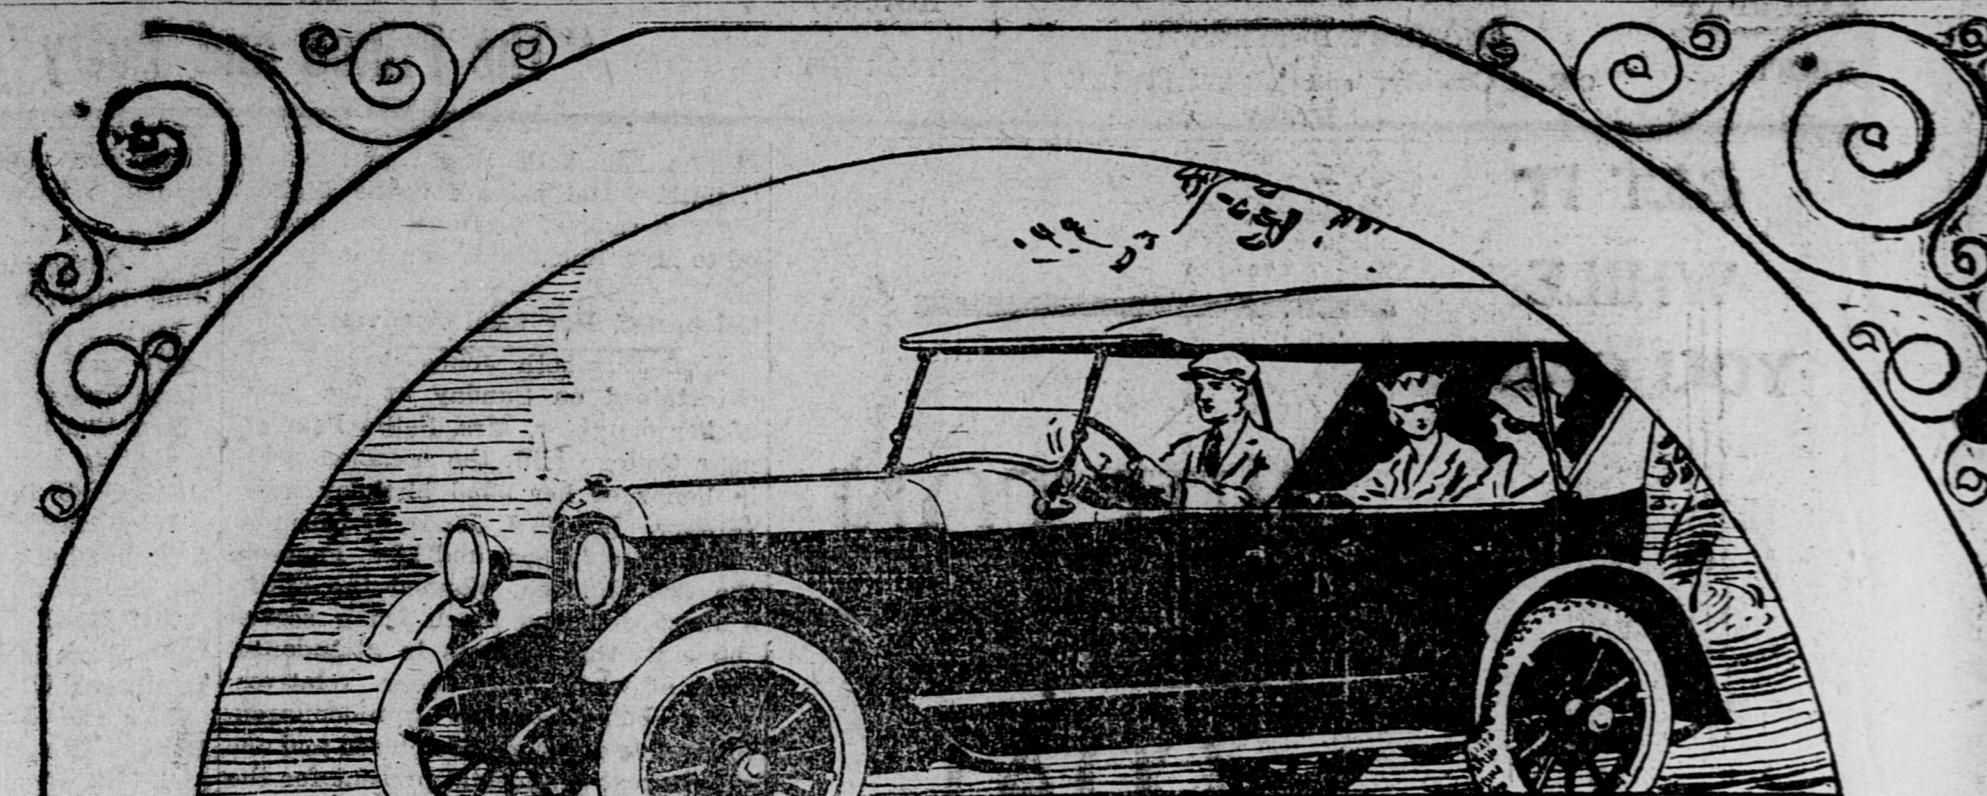

(By Associated Press)

Lisbon, Sept. 10—Matches have disappeared from the market, much to the discomfort of smokers and housewives. Waiters and cigar store clerks who are able to furnish a few matches have been extremely popular for two weeks. In view of the high prices here, the operatives of the Match Company demand higher wages, and the company to meet their wishes petitioned the government for permission to raise the price of matches. This consent has not been given and in view of the deadlock the inhabitants of Portugal have had no matches for about a fortnight, since the stocks in the shops are exhausted.

CAMP DANIEL BOONE TO CLOSE THIS WEEK

Valley View, Ky., Sept. 10—Camp Daniel Boone, summer recreation and conference camp of the State Young Men's Christian Association, will close this week, after an unusually successful season. More than 800 persons have spent periods at the camp during the summer. Three recreational camps for boys, covering six weeks, brought 355 registrations, and two for girls, covering three weeks, brought 165. Hi-Y delegates from all parts of Kentucky, to the number of 94, attended the High school boys' conference conducted during the last week in August. The total number of delegates to the adult Bible class and church efficiency conference was 112. The employed officers' conference, the first week in September, included one or more delegates from every association in the state with the exception of three.

Exceptionally fine leadership characterized all the boys' camps and conferences. Seven boys won the life saving badge, among them being two from Louisville, Harper Richey and Irvine Darter. Others were George Kinsey and Shannon McAfee, of Corbin, and

Grand Opera In New York

(By Associated Press)

New York, Sept. 10.—Grand opera will return to the stage of the Manhattan Opera House here September 20 after a ten-year absence, with the offering of Bizet's "Carmen" by the San Carlo company. This will give New York three grand opera organizations during the coming season the other being the Metropolitan and the Chicago grand opera companies.

Miss Alice Gentle, who will sing the title role in Carmen in the opening, was to have made her New York debut in that part ten years ago but the deal closing the Manhattan to grand opera intervened, so that her appearance in New York in that role was deferred a decade.

REPUBLICAN GOVERNOR WRITES ON THE SENATE

Boston, Mass., Sept. 10.—Samuel W. McCall, after his service of two decades as a republican in the national house of representatives, and as governor of Massachusetts for three years has written an article for the September issue of the Atlantic Monthly under the title "Against the Senate."

The main point made in the article is that the upper branch of congress has encroached on the executive functions in one direction, and on the legislative powers of the house in the other. Governor McCall reaches the conclusion that the power to ratify treaties should be transferred from the senate, which he regards as an undemocratic agency in the center of a democratic government, to the house of representatives. Whether or not this proposal wins public assent, what Governor McCall has to say regarding the senate is attracting widespread attention. The Atlantic Monthly enjoins the public to "read it, not as republicans or democrats, but as Americans all."

Part of Governor McCall's article follows:

"While even an enthusiast would be compelled to admire the present senate of the United States with some moderation, it undoubtedly contains many able and patriotic men. There have been few better lawyers ever in that body, or few of greater intellectual energy, than Mr. Knox. In breadth and fairness of mind, and in statesmanlike quality, Mr. Underwood would have been a conspicuous figure in any senate in our history. The names associated with genuine talent and public spirit are too many to be repeated here.

"And yet, during the past generation, an element antagonist to the old traditions has found its way into the body, and has wielded an influence far out of proportion to its numbers. The ways of the jobber and the piratical methods sometimes associated with what is called "big business," have been in evidence in its management. Some men have found their way into it who have amassed great fortunes in its service. As a result the senate has stood as the rampart, not indeed of private interest of great and special interests, the well-being of which was by no means always compatible with the general weal, and was often antagonistic to the institution of property itself. From these and other causes there has been a distinct lowering of tone, and it has been shorn of much of its ancient splendor.

This moral decadence has shown itself in the recent notable debate upon the treaty. There are some who indulge in the dream that our time may inaugurate a new era and may realize the aspirations of the race for a golden age. They hope that the peoples of the world may have the wisdom, after a war destructive and wicked beyond all parallel to take steps to safeguard the peace of the future, and to free mankind from servitude to a monster that has been its most deadly and implacable foe. It has destroyed hundreds of millions of the choicest youth; it has devoured the substance of nations, and it bids fair, if not checked, to obliterate civilization itself. The hope of making permanent peace a foremost object of the war was held out to the men who were sent to the front and in that faith gave their lives.

"If the dream should happily be made to come true, those who follow us by a few centuries, in looking back upon the history of time, may well regard with wonder the contribution to this result made by the senate of a great people. They would look there for the culmination of a symphony unsurpassed since Bethlehem, and at least for a moral enthusiasm commensurate with so noble a cause. They would indeed read speeches, some of real eloquence and of analytical power, and they would witness much learning upon details. But they would see a cause of colossal importance brought down to the level of the hustings, as if it were the prime purpose, not to confer a memorable boon upon mankind, but to carry the next election. They would see it too much disfigured by hate, and marred by the raven's croaking note; and they would be able to catch too little of the majestic tones of the spiritual voices of the age. Whatever may have been the merit of the verbal criticism of the treaty, or of the clauses that were suggested to improve it, the moral tone of the debate as a whole fell below the sublime level of the theme."

MANY VOTES SOLD IN JUDGESHIP PRIMARY

Beattyville, Ky., Sept. 11.—Money was freely used, ballot boxes were broken open, election certificates were altered, Democrats voted, and the secret ballot law was ignored in the Republican primary held in this judicial district August 7, witnesses in the Kash-Hurst election contest testified yesterday.

Chester Duff, a Hurst worker in George's Branch precinct, Breathitt county, passed our money right and left, Kash witnesses swore.

James Cornett testified that Duff offered him $10 for his vote.

Levi Cope, another Kash witness, swore that he heard Duff tell Henry Rice "go in and vote on the board come back and I will give you what I promised."

Rice entered the voting place, Cope swore, and on his return was handed $3 or $4 by Duff, Jasper Arrowood, Breathitt county deputy assessor, swore that he saw Duff on the outside of George's Branch precinct with a big roll of money in his hands. Duff called two men aside, one at a time, Arrowood testified, spoke to each in a low tone of voice and later handed each money. One of the two was handed silver. Arrowood swore, saying that he heard it rattle as the recipient dropped it into his pocket.

Robert Fout testified that he saw Duff hand six bills to Dave Herald whereupon Herald "shoved the money into his pockets, turned and shook hands with Mr. Arrowood and then entered the voting place."

In response to a question from Judge Cisco, sitting in the case, Fout said he could not swear that the money did not change hands as the result of a legitimate business deal.

Less Richie, Democrat, recorded on one of the election stub books as having voted, testified that he did not vote.

Edward White, who served as an inspector of election in the George's Branch precinct, swore that George Noble, a Democratic magistrate and clerk of the election, urged Democrats to vote for Hurst, assuring them that notwithstanding their party affiliations they had the right to express their preference as between Hurst and Kash. Noble finally persuaded a number of Democrats, relatives of Hurst, to vote for him. White swore.

When an aged man entered the voting place and inquired how to vote, White testified, he was told by Noble to "vote the straight ticket," whereupon he stamped in the space opposite the first name on the ballot and walked out.

Another voter, Carlo Wilson, exercising the right of suffrage for the first time, voted for Kash. White swore, but when his ballot accidentally came open as he placed it on the table in front of the judges, Noble held that exposure of the stencil mark invalidated it and it was not counted.

BIDS WANTED

Additional information regarding a mysterious telephone conversation in which, it is alleged, Blaine Short was directed to keep under cover certain persons, wanted as witnesses in the contest case, was given to Judge Cisco yesterday by Miss Lutie Cobb, telephone operator at Jackson.

Unlike Mrs. Loretta Bays, who Thursday said she could not swear positively that Clay Watkins was the man talking to Short, Miss Cobb testified that she was practically certain Watkins was the man. She had heard him talk frequently, she said, and recognized his voice.

Miss Cobb declined to answer when she was asked whether she did not violate a rule of the exchange when she listened in on the conversation. Judge Cisco encouraged the young woman to tell all she knew regarding the conversation, reiterating his intention to leave no stone unturned that may lead to punishment of any person who may be guilty of attempting to frustrate justice by hiding out witnesses.
